Day One

Daniel Hughes, Sian Phillips and Sarah Morse will be presenting on the core components of DDP and their application to clinical practice (illustrated by clinical case examples).

Jonathan Baylin will be sharing recent developments from the world of interpersonal neurobiology and highlighting its relevance to the work of DDP practitioners when applying this knowledge to their therapeutic work with families, helping children to heal from complex trauma.

Day Two

On day two, a variety of additional presenters will showcase DDP Practice in all its contexts.

Kim Golding's presentation will include the practice of DDP with Foster Carers, Young People and Adults who have Grown Up in Care;

Julie Hudson will be updating on the work of DDP Connects UK;

Ben Gurney-Smith will be presenting on current findings from the latest DDP research;

Helen Kirkaldie and Lynn McDonnell will be presenting on their role embedding relationship based interventions and DDP principles across agencies;

This conference is organised by Vicky Sutton and Alison Keith, and supported by DDP Connects UK.
